Basic Product Information

In the upper right corner, general descriptive information about the product will be displayed.

This information includes:

Product Info Flags

Product info flags, such as "New Product", "Data Fresh", or "Trending", will be shown above the product name when that item's information meets the criterion for the flag. For example, a product will display the "New Product" flag if it has been added to ESP+ within the past six months.

Product Name

The Product Name is provided by the supplier.

Product Number and CPN

The Product Number is provided by the supplier.

CPN is an abbreviation for coded product number or customer product number and is different from the product number provided by the supplier. CPNs are distinct call numbers for products which are unique to your company and correspond to products in your ESP+ and the ESP+ of all users in your company. This means that every ESP+ user in your company will have the same coded product number for an item. A benefit to using the CPN is that it can only be utilized by your company. For example, imagine you send a presentation to your client that displays the supplier's product number. Your customer could then provide that number to your competitors or search for it on the internet. But if you provide the client with the CPN, it will not be traceable to anyone outside your company, even if your competitors are also using ESP+!
